Jefferson City, Mo.—Nathan Sam Hill of the state penitentiary Wednesday sent a telegram to Attorney General Daugherty, saying there no longer was room in the female department of the penitentiary for men convicted in the federal courts.

Fifty-seven of the 100 women were sentenced in various federal courts, some as far away as Alaska.

Nine years ago, the Missouri penitentiary was selected by federal authorities as the most suitable place for the imprisonment of women convicted in federal courts. This brought many women anarchists from New York and recently the number of women convicted of the violations of the Harrison anti-narcotic act has increased so greatly that the capacity of the prison has been reached, the warden said.

Rooms Filled

A vacant room is lost income. Such vacancies are today very few at present—hardly enough for the demand. Mrs. Gus Baker derives a nice little income from two rooms rented through a classified ad in the Gazette.

The paper containing her ad had barely left the press when Mrs. Baker began to receive calls, and she was in a position to make her choice among several applicants for her rooms.

Most rentable rooms are filled. Those vacant are wasted. Call 77 either phone.

MARGOT DELIGHTED WITH INTERVIEW AT WHITE HOUSE

"SO TRUTHFUL," SHE SAYS OF PRESIDENT HARDING.

DISCUSS POLITICS Mrs. Asquith, Besieged by Scribes, Bursts Into Superlatives.

By DAVID LAWRENCE.
Copyright 1921, by Janesville Gazette.
Washington.—Margot Asquith, who has a "big" of the White House, said she was "delighted" with her interview with the president.

"Why he has a head almost as big as mine," she said with pardonable exaggeration—and he is so truthful.

The wife of a former premier of Great Britain doesn't always break into the schedule of engagements by the White House and while Mrs. Asquith is in the United States on a lecture tour, the proceedings of which are divided between her and American bookers, she is not without her share of the White House.

"Oh, everything," she said with a sigh of fatigue as she leaned against the corridor walls. And before any other question could be posed at her she was lingering for her neckpiece, uncomfortably and remarking upon the heat of the room.

"Margot and the Air," she said. "You Americans seem to fairly choke in hot air," she said.

"Did you say 'hot' or 'in' asked one of the group with pencil in hand.

But Mrs. Asquith, parried with a good descriptive adjective about her visit with the president, how wonderful it was.

"And the president gave me his original copy of the speech he delivered at the army commissioning ceremony. He gave me the original copy of the speech he delivered at the army commissioning ceremony. He gave me the original copy of the speech he delivered at the army commissioning ceremony.

There was a pause. Her husband, who was standing in the background, moved forward and she started to reply.

Showing Boxing Pictures Can't Be Prevented

Legal authorities here declare there is no way of prohibiting the Dempsey-Carpentier fight pictures in Janesville—If such action was demanded. Both District Attorney S. G. Dunwiddie and United States Attorney William H. Dougherty expressed an opinion that the exhibitors are within the law.

When the fight films were brought into Wisconsin and shown at Beloit, the government promptly caused the arrest of the man alleged to be responsible for shipping them from Illinois to Wisconsin. This case came up in the March term of court.

The federal laws declare it is a violation to take the pictures from one state to another—but does not provide that an exhibitor of the pictures is separate violation of the law. Consequently the exhibitors of the pictures have been going into court paying their fines in a state and then showing them further arrested. District Attorney Dunwiddie declared there are no laws in Wisconsin forbidding the showing of boxing or prize fighting films.

"If Carpentier had won the fight I would be only too glad to have people see the films," remarked one attorney. "However, there is no legal means to stop the films unless it was to or complaint made against their showing."

City Attorney Tangle Up to Supreme Court

Madison—The tangle which has developed in Milwaukee over selection of a city attorney at the municipal election in April, this year, was brought before the supreme court Wednesday for unraveling. Two questions are involved in the litigation, over which the high court has assumed original jurisdiction on the question of whether an election can legally be held at this time to choose a successor to City Attorney Clifton Williams, resigned, and the other whether John M. Niven, first assistant city attorney, legally assumed the duties of city attorney on resignation of Mr. Williams, or whether Mayor D. W. Hoan was empowered to appoint a successor. Mayor Hoan, on resignation of Mr. Williams, appointed Benjamin Reynolds as his successor, but the council refused to confirm the appointment, holding the first assistant city attorney should succeed. This act of the council the election commission argues is illegal.

OLD GUARD WIPED OFF MAP AT MILK PRODUCERS MEETING

guard as the voting strength was apparent. The straight ticket of the progressives was elected. Only once did W. J. Kettle take the floor and that was to decline nomination as a director. William Potter, one of the early founders of the marketing company, spoke several times. But in the main it was a question of voting strength and the progressives controlled the issue three to one on every ballot.

Control the Pools

Among the Rock county men attending the meeting were W. G. Patterson, H. A. Knapp, R. K. Overton, C. W. Shimeall, Marcus Kellogg, Bert Skinner, C. O. Hopner, Ray McCullary, H. O. Netaasta, John McArthur, J. J. McCann and A. M. Meland.

The progressives now claim complete control of the marketing company and also lay claims to have tied up the old milk producers' associations, having an injunction against their collecting or spending funds from the dairymen. The association, however, has opened offices in Chicago in defiance to the orders of the progressives who seek to merge the two associations into a reorganized marketing company.

The only argument that arose during the stockholders meeting was on a motion to demand the resignation of all the directors. The chairman ruled the motion out of order and for half an hour the meeting room was in an uproar.

The effect of the election of directors favorable to reorganization, establishing of better business and ousting of the dissatisfied men, formerly office holders, is expected to help the dairymen of Southern Wisconsin. Now contracts are to be circulated and an attempt made to build up the organization to more popular feeling among the farmers and to control the milk markets.

The milk pool is still behind in milk checks for parts of Rock county. Prompt payment of milk checks is one feature demanded by the farmers together with better business administration by the managing officers.

Seek General Manager

Bert E. Skinner, Beloit, president of the Rock county association, expresses full confidence in an effective marketing company to obtain better prices and increase the market for milk. "The marketing company is now seeking a general manager to head the cooperative pool."

There were 1,500 farmers and dairymen attending the Chicago meeting and more than 5,000 votes were cast. The night meeting was attended by only a part of the delegates, who checked over the ballot results.

"We can look for a better marketing company," was the expression of the Rock county men following the election victory.

Facilities to cure for the public. That will be especially true in the necessary streets and sidewalks in the city.

Establish the city municipal form of government as economical and efficient.

Give the city a new and available $100,000 for this purpose and it should not be used for any other. Finish the city and zoning plan.

NOT AS IT USED TO BE, NO SIR.

When Galileo took the pipe organ tube and put in his lenses so he could look into the face of the moon, he was hailed away and told that he was peeping on the preserves of the Omnipotent. He had found out about this because the Prince of Nassau had seen in a Dutch spectacle shop in Middleburg, a pair of ordinary eyes—eyes so fixed that with them the rooster on the church steeple seemed about a foot off and was upside down.

Ever since that time, and even before, we have been finding out things about the little bits of nature loose all around us. In an illuminating address before the Twilight Club a famous engineer of the time, Mr. Kettering, made a prophecy of what might be done, which had he lived in the age of Galileo would have landed him in jail along with the bootleggers. But Mr. Edison is even more optimistic. He considers the radio the greatest achievement of the age. He said the other day that we would some day be able to hear ants talk with the use of the amplifier. Not that we care particularly for the conversation of ants but as indicative of the tremendous amplification of sound made possible by the radio. It is predicted that within a year thousands of homes will be provided with wireless telephones and traffic lines will have to be established.

"Things ain't what they used to be" for a fact. Energy lost or dormant is being utilized. When the water power is developed and electricity is distributed generally we will no longer pay any attention to the coal dealer. He will be out of a job. Back in "the good old days," lamented by some, we were told there was opportunity for everybody. From what is going on it may be said there never was so much opportunity of a high character as at this minute and the waste by-products alone would keep most anyone who was not lazy busy all the time.

TARIFF, LABOR AND THE FARMER.

When the farmer of America thinks of the prices of cut skins and other low prices for some of the articles produced on the farm he becomes interested in the figures of the customs departments on imports from foreign countries. Then too the laboring man who sees wages cut in the cotton mills and the lack of demand, wants to know what will happen later when he reads the figures of imports. The goods are coming under the old democratic tariff rates. In order to protect the farmer and the laborer the tariff bill is in congress now. The imports of manufactured goods made of cotton, such as thread, yarn, bleached and unbleached printed cloth, flannel from 5,000,000 square yards in December, 1920, to over 17,000,000 square yards in 1921. Our imports of embroideries and lace goods in December, 1920, were a little over 604,000 yards. In December, 1921, they were over 4,000,000 yards. Our imports of lace articles of all kinds in December, 1920, were 7,000,000 yards. In December, 1921, they were 43,000,000 yards. Our imports of calf-skins in December, 1920, were 1,300,000 pounds. In December, 1921, they were 4,000,000 pounds. For the corresponding months our imports of sheepskins almost doubled. Our total imports of all kinds of hides and skins jumped 8,000,000 pounds. Our imports of cheese for the corresponding months jumped from 1,700,000 pounds to 4,000,000 pounds. Our imports of carpets increased from 1,750,000 pounds to 5,550,000 pounds. The imports of manufactures of wool, such as worsteds and other woolen goods for December, 1921, were 250 per cent greater than for December, 1920.

Numerous other illustrations could be given showing that under the present Underwood tariff, with Europe rapidly getting on its feet industrially, paying its labor a cheap wage in a debased currency, this country is being flooded with all kinds of products at a price which it is impossible for American manufacturers to meet. If this flood continues the army of unemployed which now exists will not only become permanently unemployed, but their ranks will be augmented by millions more.

Just as the time approaches to shear the dog the bobbed hair craze dies out and it isn't fashionable any more.

If the Irish in Ireland under Collins and the Dalí Bheann could be let alone and be enabled to work out the problems confronting them in establishing the Irish Free State, there would be little difficulty in coming to a peaceful and orderly government.

Egypt has postponed the threatened revolution.

THE SILK CLAD INDIAN

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

Washington.—The Indian is changing his blanket for a silk shirt. The younger Indians particularly are turning with avidity to the garment and the accompanying haberdashery. Lots and lots of these original Americans, once termed "red devils," are wearing a shirt that costs less than $15. The shirt must be sufficiently colorful to please the Indian eye, and the makers cannot go too far in this direction.

Recently members of the house committee on Indian affairs visited various Indian reservations in the west and found men and women of the tribes developing a strong taste for personal adornment affected by the white race, but going beyond the preference for subdued tones generally observed among the Indians.

Officials of the Indian bureau here look with favor on substituting the habiliments of the white man for the blanket and nondescript Indian costume of old. They do not discourage these warms of the nation from dressing themselves in up-to-date garments, even if in doing so they spend much of their money on personal adornment instead of on more substantial things which would tend to show greater progress. The bureau officials look upon the change as showing a tendency, particularly upon the part of the younger generation, to abandon once and for all the old Indian regalia, which has been the tribal costume for centuries. The blanket Indian has been a difficult problem for the Indian bureau for some time.

If E. Devendorf, for more than 20 years clerk of the Indian affairs committee of the house of representatives, is authority for the statement that it is chiefly among the rich Ojibwa tribes in Oklahoma that the colorful Indians are well able to finance their taste for the latest in municipal affairs. Establish the city municipal form of government as economical and efficient. Give the city a new and available $100,000 for this purpose and it should not be used for any other. Finish the city and zoning plan.

Automobiles are in great demand among the rich Indians, and they like speed. The Indian is a good driver, too. In the level prairie country of Oklahoma there are many long stretches of good roads, where the Indian driver can "step on his" and indulge his craving for speed to his heart's content. There are notably few accidents in which Indian motorists are concerned. However, where whiskey enters into the equation, the Indian, like his white brother, seems to count on the high road, and has no trouble in finding plenty of it.

An instance of Indian disregard of money is shown in the story of a trip to Colorado Springs taken last summer by a party of rich Ojibwas. They chartered six Pullman cars, spent most of the summer in good hotels, and returned in private Pullmans. But about 100 miles from home one of the Indians, who enjoys an income from oil lands amounting to several thousands of dollars a month, got tired of riding on the train. He alighted, hired a taxicab, and drove the rest of the way in it. His taxi bill amounted to $20, which he paid without a murmur.

Legislation is before congress designed to give full citizenship to the Indian. (Dr. Joseph R. Dixon of Philadelphia has been active before the Indian committee of congress, pointing out that although citizenship appears to be given to the Indian with the allotment of public lands, there is a sting to it. A patent to the land in fee simple is not granted until 25 years have elapsed, so that the Indian owner is kept from citizenship for that length of time.)

A Sioux Indian presented himself at a registration booth for the selective draft during the late war.

"Are you an alien?" he was asked.

"No, I was born in the United States," he replied.

"Then you are a citizen?"

"No, I am not a citizen."

"What are you?"

"I am an Indian. Although I was born in the United States, I have not the rights of an alien. I have the rights of a citizen. My father is a full blooded Sioux chief. I am a mix between the bloods of 21 and 31, and must present myself for military service."

The draft board was puzzled for a time. Finally he went into the records as "Big Face, born in the United States, but not a citizen."

A report of the commissioner of Indian affairs estimates that over 2,000 Indians entered some branch of the military service during the World War, and that fully 6,000 of these entered by voluntary enlistment. It is also stated that of the 17,313 Indians registered by draft boards, only 228 sought deferred classification or exemption.

Brig. Gen. Enoch H. Crowder, provost marshal general, in his report to the president on the selective draft, declared that the raising of the army had proceeded, and the organizations entered upon their transit overseas, it was seen that the traditional aptitude of the Indian race for the military career was being verified and that the men of this breed were nobly showing their zeal for the great cause. He quoted from the official A. E. F. newspaper, "The Stars and Stripes," the following:

"It was the Prussian Guard against the American Indian on the morning of Oct. 8 in the hills of Champagne. When it was all over, the Prussian Guards were fur on their way back toward the Aisne, and warriors of 12 Indian tribes looked down on the town of St. Etienne. The Indians—one company of them—were fighting with the 26th division, made up of Texas and Oklahoma rangers and oil men, for the most part. 'The Millionaire Company' was the title that had followed the Indians from Camp Bowie, Wyo., and here followed them also a legend of $1,000 checks cashed by the Indian back privates—of privates who used to spend their hours on pass in 12-cylinder motor cars."

In connection with the Indian in the Civil War, Dr. Dixon tells the following story:

"It is related by Dr. George Haven Putnam that when Grant and Lee had gathered at Appomattox, in arranging the details of the surrender, Grant looked about the group in the room, his eye falling on Gen. John Morgan, a brigade commander who had during the last few months served on Grant's staff. 'General Morgan, I will ask you,' said Grant, 'has this only man, American in blood, Indian in spirit, been asked for the surrender of the South? This is the man who has led the hands of the North and South, after more than four years of bloody strife.'"

There were a large number of Indians who enlisted in both the Union and Confederate armies. At the present time there is a post of the Grand Army of the Republic on the Menominee reservation in Wisconsin, composed entirely of Indian veterans of the Civil War. Many of them were decorated for bravery in battle.

The Indians now are scattered in 30 of the 48 states and are comprised in 183 tribes. They number about 360,000, and their numbers are actually increasing, according to the Indian bureau.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST.

WINTER

It seems so dead out there today. The snow has deepened the place. The ground where the children play has lost its touch of charm and grace. What was a garden, now is bare. The rose stalks flutter to and fro. There is no hint that life is there. Beneath the drifted ice and snow, the sparrows twitter in the tree. But otherwise no sound is heard. Where used to ring the minstrelsy of many a golden-throated bird, the grass beneath the snow is dead. Or is it a curious physiologist's fact that physical work creates a natural or normal need for sleep whereas mental or "nervous" work does not. There is wisdom in this. The sleep of the laboring man is sweet. Be a laboring man. Even if you are making your living by your wit, be honest with yourself and give your muscles work to do every day. Don't become a health spendthrift. Don't be a health gambler. Exercise and sweat are painful and vulgar and so very, very unattractive; yet, without exercise and sweat you are "nervous" as a hand-pump. After all, though you may live by your wit alone, he may not live long or well. Unless he adds exercise and sweat to his program and makes these essential a part of his daily life, some day he will be a premature breakdown inevitably looms ahead.

People who can't sleep almost invariably need exercise. As a rule they try to josh themselves about "work." They try to imagine "overwork" as a reason for their sleeplessness. We need not consider their overwork. Making a living by your wit is not work, although it is popularly so-called by courtesy. Thus a salesman, an editor, a lawyer, a writer, or a minister doesn't work in the intrinsic sense of the word; a doctor, a policeman, a blacksmith, a teacher, a dentist, a stenographer, a housekeeper, or a night watchman does. Each of these, though, in his own way, he is putting forth energy; and no energy is involved in just using one's wit.

All the hypnotic drugs which really produce sleep are dangerous or injurious if taken repeatedly. It is perfectly safe and often beneficial to health for one to take a dose or two of such drugs in emergency. There is no doctor or druggist who has a more frequently or habitually employed to aid sleep without injuring health and encouraging disaster in the long run. A man or woman who has a habit of sleeping for persons who are not already overworked. The natural thing to do after a hearty meal is sleep. Popular notions about night-mares to the C. N.

Some persons find a tepid bath or a warm bath at night favors sleep. This is the shirker's alternative. The best of hypnotics is physical exercise. Two miles of oxygen taken on the hoof, three times a day, or six

ON THE SPUR OF THE MOMENT

By ROY K. MOUTON.

He didn't have a syllable of wit. He followed all of his own ideas. With these two tangled skirts and pads she never heeded his accounts. For nearly a year she had been in the city. And she had a pair of shoes and spats. And evening gowns of texture fair. She wore no jewels in her hair. She never had a desire to sigh. To Europe for a summer trip. In social settings she didn't shine. And never had to stand in line. At well-receptions dressed to kill. There was no unpaid modiste's bill. Though she had a taste for fast. But got along with wondrous tact. The servant problem pestered her not. She never worried over her lot. She could stand a single day without car. Because she had no touting car. And last, but not the least to note, She didn't even want to vote.

It is not so much what the English travelers say about us, but the snarky way they have of saying it, don't you know.

GOOD ADVICE.

By all means, fall in love, my boy. And be just like the rest of us. For love makes saints of the worst of us. And dempfools out of the best of us. —Lester Lamb.

"Americans are far more courteous than I ever imagined them to be, on purpose, they make a deliberate effort to be so," Mrs. Asquith. "Well, now, ain't that just precious? She thought we were a lot of ill-mannered boobies, and was agreeing surprised. 'You'd hardly expect a courtesy here, in this bustling city,' she continued."

Who's Who Today

MRS. OLIVER HARRIMAN

Mrs. Oliver Harriman of New York is a new and different sort of society woman. Without a dash of aristocracy among those who matter, so to speak, Mrs. Harriman has gone in for a multitude of useful activities outside her own set.

One hundred and fifty thousand Camp Fire Girls throughout the country look to Mrs. Harriman for inspiration.

Heading an organization of so great a membership, and holding it to ideals which inevitably make it a wonderful new generation of mothers, is in itself a job of all but staggering proportions. But for Mrs. Harriman it's just a part of the day's work.

A glance back over the last few years shows her raising $200,000 for the service bureau of the Red Cross Christmas seal drive. There are glimpses of her, too, as vice chairman of the mayor's committee of women, as chairman of the women's committee of the League of Nations Association, as a campaign leader for the Actors' National Memorial day.

All in all, Mrs. Harriman finds her time about as fully occupied as does her husband, who is head of the banking and brokerage house of Harriman & Co. And she has found opportunity to rear three splendid sons.

Mrs. Harriman, formerly Grace Carley, was married in 1901.

LOOKING BACKWARD

FORTY YEARS AGO

Feb. 15, 1882.—Workmen are now engaged in putting the stained glass windows in the Congregational church. The whole church is now nearing completion and will be one of the handsomest in this section. By this shall Miss Minerva Guernsey, a native of this city, is now one of the most accomplished dramatic readers of the East and is having much success with her work.

THIRTY YEARS AGO

Feb. 15, 1892.—A team of horses, drawing some heavy load for Ed. Guernsey of Mr. Zito, crashed into the large plate glass window in the window of the A. F. Hall jewelry store this morning, but no injuries were received by any of those in the store nor by Mr. Guernsey. "Recklessness" will be given at the Myers Opera house tonight.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

Feb. 15, 1902.—There is a controversy in the city concerning the election, appointment and confirmation of the Chief of Police and Fire Chief, according to the new charter. City Attorney Eugene C. Brown has been asked for "Prince Henry of Germany is on his way to America for a visit. It is hoped that the visit will cement the friendship between the two countries."

TEN YEARS AGO

Feb. 15, 1912.—Dr. Sun Yat Sen has resigned his position as president of the Chinese republic and Yuan Shi Kai has been elected as his successor. The rebellions continue in that country, and intervention from some outside country will occur if it keeps on. Lawyers of the country will meet here Feb. 25.

THE NEW COMMANDMENT.

Jesus said: "A new commandment I give unto you. That ye love one another; as I have loved you, that ye also love one another. By this shall all men know that ye are my disciples, if ye have love one to another."—John 13: 34, 35.

Personal Health Service

INSOMNIA

Health gamblers, persons with "nerves" and proud of them, "timbers," the man without any head, and "sweats" who won't work, are the chief offenders who are serving indeterminate sentences at insomnia.

In order to earn sleep you must put your muscles at work and sweat. This should be a profitable rule for the merchants and manufacturers, but the activities after the hour of the day will be more successful than those in the morning.

Educators should benefit from this sway, which tends toward specialization and larger rewards.

Those who seek employment would better delay any sort of initiative until a more favorable rule of the stars.

This is not a lucky wedding day, for Mars exercises evil power that makes for quarrels and even divorce.

It is not a good day for the buying or wearing of new garments. Modistes, jewelers and merchants who deal in women's goods may be affected temporarily, but the day is not a good one for extraordinary extravagance in dress and decoration.

Mars is in an aspect read as extremely trying for surgeons and physicians who have heavy demands upon them.

Warning is given that disease of the digestive apparatus may be exceedingly prevalent. Cooking should be regarded more and more as one of the fine arts.

Fail in prices on many commodities is again forecast and the shopping season will be an extremely active one.

Milk Is the Modern Health Insurance

Why? Because it contains every element of diet necessary to health. Our diet is generally deficient in milk. The vital vitamins are lacking in many of our over-prepared foods. Milk is the only food that contains all the elements of health. KEEP it right and USE it right. You guard against a host of health ills.

Poor milk, badly kept milk, used at the wrong times and in the wrong ways, may be dangerous. You should understand the use and care of this potent food.

And in order to be sure you should have the Bulletin on milk written by Dr. Milton J. Rosenberg, Professor of Bacteriology and Hygiene at Harvard University, and formerly director of the Bureau of Hygiene of the United States Public Health Service.

Our Washington Information Bureau will secure a free copy of this booklet for anyone who sends two cents to cover return postage. In filling out the coupon, print name and address or be sure to write plainly.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE.
George Morton goes to work at the home of Planter, a rich man, when his father loses all his property—a livery business, George becomes a horse trainer and as a part of the job acts as groom to Sylvia Planter when she goes to the city. Sylvia is a young girl, her horse and thinking her unbecomingly, George kisses her, calling out that he loves her. She drives him from her home, and George thunders her brother, who goes to horsehip him, but in a fair fight. He seeks an education, goes to Princeton, meets Daisy, a girl, gets a place on the football team and aids his college to win from Harvard. He makes many acquaintances. He has determined that Sylvia Planter shall marry him and meets her several times, each time seemingly widening the breach between them. But he continues in the determination. Betty Allison is very kind to George, and at her home meets her friend, Sylvia, which is embarrassing.

George shook the streaming black liquid from his face. With his stained hands he grasped Dalrymple. His fingers tightened with a feeling of profound satisfaction. No masks now. Finally the enemy of tears was unloosed. He and Dalrymple were to have always wanted him.

"One more word— You been saying that kind of thing—"
The hurrying of many feet in the outer office recalled him. The impulsive George Morton once again, beneath the veneer. He let Dalrymple go, drew out his handkerchief, looked distastefully at the black stains on his clothing.

Lambert and Goodhue closed the door on the curious clerks.

It was Lambert, who had spoken. Goodhue merely shrugged his shoulders, as if he had all along expected such a culmination.

Dalrymple, lingering his throat spasmodically, sank into a chair. His face flushed. His breath came audibly.

"Caught him harder than I realized," George reflected. He spoke aloud with his whimsical smile.

"Looks as if I'd lost my temper. I don't often do it."
He had no regret. He was happy. He believed himself nearer Sylvia than he had ever been. He felt in grasping Dalrymple's throat as if he had touched her hand.

But failed to give its true value, consequently, to Lambert's angry turning on him after Dalrymple's shaking accusation.

"Sorry, Lambert. Had to—do do."

What I could—he was rotten impatient about—about Sylvia."
XVIII
Goodhue caught Lambert's arm. In a flash George read the meaning of Dalrymple's charge. Naturally he was the one to do something of the sort. He had been afraid of Lambert's knowing of the loan. How much less could he let Lambert learn why George had justifiably shut his mouth.

"Keep quiet," George warned Lambert. "Don't say a word to any one out of here. He needs attention. I'm not a doctor. He hasn't been himself since he came."

But Lambert wouldn't have it. "The great thing, Dalrymple," he commanded. "You'll not say another word."

George walked to Dalrymple. "You'll not say another word."

Dalrymple stood up, waving his fingers in and out, as if he were clapping his hands to George.

"I'm sorry, Morton. Damn sorry. Forget—forget—"

His voice wandered into a difficult silence, as if he had seen this way, too, a chance of implicating himself with Sylvia's brother, but his eyes continued to beg George. They were like the eyes of an animal, caught in a net, beseeching release.

Goodhue gave him his hat. He took it but drew away from the sort of touch on his arm.

"Don't think I'm not all right," he said in a frightened voice. "Took me by surprise, but I'm all right—quite all right. Going home."

He glanced at Lambert and again at George, then left the room, pulling at his necktie, Goodhue anxiously at his heels.

"What about it?" Lambert asked George sharply.

George sat down, still trying to rid himself of the attack souvening of the encounter.

"Don't be a fool. I said nothing about your sister—nothing whatever. He couldn't get rid of Dalrymple's begging eyes, yet why should he spare him at all?"

"The rest of it," he went on, easily. "is between Dalrymple and me."

"I'm not sure," Lambert challenged. He reminded George of the younger Lambert who had advanced with a whip in his hand.

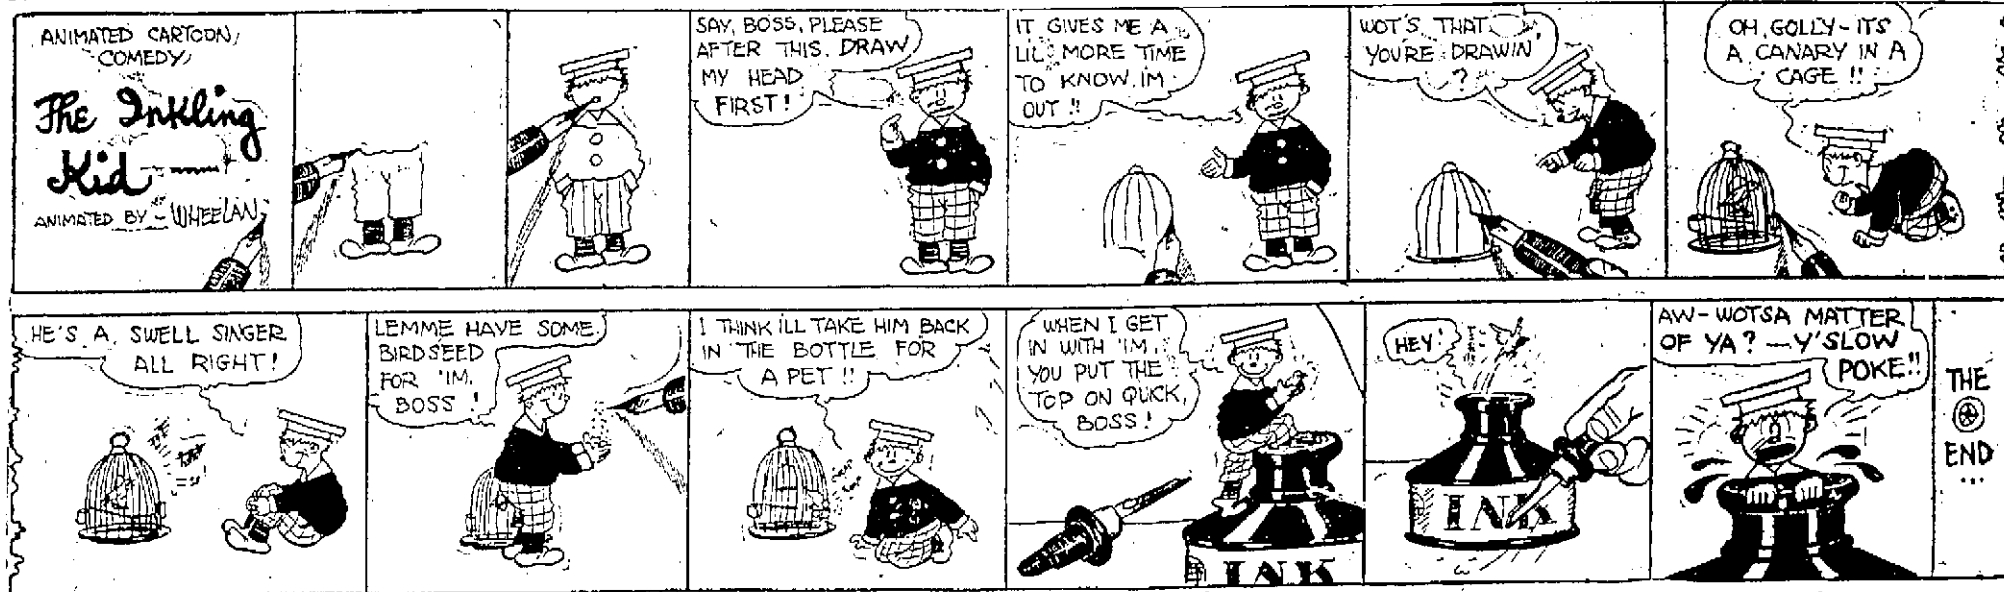

"See here," he said. "You can't make me talk about anything I don't care to. I've told you I didn't mention your sister. I couldn't to that fellow."

"Tinker Bob"
Stories
by Carlyle H. Holcomb

A CREATURE WITH A TAIL ON EACH SIDE

"Well, Silky, how do you feel this morning?" asked Tinker Bob, as the sun came out bright and clear. "I'm not going to sleep with the windows open any more if it does not hot, for I don't want any more snakes making us visits in the middle of the night. I don't know but I'm ready to go back to Major Pale Cat and Chief Tiger in the Great Forest. I would rather live there than here any day." Silky was somewhat discouraged.

"Well, we are here only for a while to see these creatures. I was glad to see that fellow, only I couldn't get such a good look at him in the night as in the daylight. But you haven't taken me to the place where you saw the biggest thing in the world. I want to know more about him."

"There was one thing I forgot to tell you about, and that was the big fans he had on each side of one end. He kept fanning them about as though he was too hot and wanted to cool off. Or else he used them to brush the flies off with."

"Well, let us go to the place where you saw him yesterday. If he is as big as you say he will be there today for he couldn't move very fast."

When Silky traveled with the King he had to travel on the ground for Tinker could not jump from one tree to the other like a monkey. In the jungles there are paths as there are in the forest, and when any of the creatures take a journey, even the serpents, they follow the paths for they are like other folks who always look for the easiest way.

Silky found a path that led in the direction he had traveled the day before and the King followed. It was not a path where the weeds and grass had been worn off by much travel, but merely an opening in the thick jungle where it was easier traveling.

Silky reigned, for the creatures of the jungles do their work at night and sleep in the day time. Even the birds that were seen did not sing so merrily as they did in the forest where Tinker Bob had lived.

"Look there," cried Silky, all excited as he pointed ahead. "There's the fellow. He's in the same place he was yesterday. I believe he can't travel at all!"

Tinker looked in the direction Silky pointed and sure enough there stood before them the biggest creature that Tinker had ever seen.

"Well, of all things," said the King, "I surely never saw a fellow like that before. Yes, he has a tail at both ends, but one is bigger than the other and he wiggles it more. Look, there are two white things sticking out, they look like teeth. And he has no hair on his back. Why one of his legs is really as big as a tree. Silky, that is the funniest thing I ever saw. I'm going to find out who he is."

Tinker Bob went straight toward him, followed closely by Silky. The King did not follow, he was looking at the fellow who he was looking at.

He has a tail at both ends, but one is bigger than the other and he wiggles it more.

Ham Patties—Two tablespoons butter, one-quarter cup stale bread crumbs, two-thirds cup milk, one cup chopped cooked ham, one-half tablespoon chopped parsley, two eggs, salt, pepper.

Melt butter, add bread crumbs and milk, and cook five minutes, stirring constantly. Add ham, parsley, and eggs slightly beaten. Season with salt and pepper. Turn into buttered individual molds, having molds two-thirds full. Set the molds in pan of hot water, cover with buttered paper, and bake 20 minutes.

Cream Fried Ham—Make a good cream sauce, rich but not too thick. Cut as many slices from a cold boiled ham as are needed, and lay them in a frying pan with just a tiny bit of butter. Have the pan hot so that the ham heats and frizzles quickly. Arrange the meat on a hot dish, and pour the sauce over it, garnishing it with little toast slices. This is a quick, easy and economical luncheon, and a good one as well.

Genial—As you are finding the egg shampooing to be so effective, you will find it to continue with it. You are 15 pounds overweight.

Eleanor—When the pores of the face have become clogged it takes more than that lotion treatment to remove them. A daily hot bath for the whole body will relieve the pores of the face by keeping the skin clear over the whole body.

The clean digestive tract and normal action of the bowels are needed to relieve the pores of the complexion so that they will not be overworked. It is this which clogs the pores, so to refine them put the system in perfect order and after this you will find the astrinents contracting these overworked little organs of the skin.

Genial—The sulphur and molasses blood purifier should not be taken in the cold weather as this would make you sensitive to the cold by thinning the blood.

Interested Reader—You can have the eye-liner formula filled by any drug store and it will be a much better deal than if you chose any separate ingredient from it to use on the lashes. Everything in the formula is needed or it would not be included.

H. H.—Usually the people who have light brown hair need colors to strengthen their hair. All shades of brown will do this but the darker ones will be best. A vivid complexion is best combined with neutral colors and gray is especially good.

Thelma—If you are so about all over, the best way to rid yourself of the double chin is a general reduction. You may also massage the chin and follow this by using an astringent to contract the skin as you consume the fatty tissue. The process is very simple.

Till the chin and take the palm of the hand and use it as you would an iron, beginning at the lower part of the throat and make a stroke upward and carry it out to the point of the chin.

Dinner Stories

A lady stopping at a hotel on the Pacific coast rang the bell the first morning of her arrival, and was very much surprised when a Japanese boy opened the door and came in.

"I pushed the button three times for a maid," she said sternly, as she glared under the covers.

"Yes," the little fellow replied, "me she."

Six-year-old Paul was misbehaving in the school ranks when his nine-year-old sister from her place in the next row happened to notice him. She immediately she walked from her place to him and administered a good shaking and a command for him to stand still.

"Why did you shake him, Virginia?" her teacher asked her after they were in their room.

"Because if I hadn't shook him his teacher would," she retorted.

The questioning teacher smiled. "But I can't see, if he had to be shaken, why did you shake him?"

"I can," Virginia was positive. "I wanted to keep it all in the family."

The late Edgar Saltus—that brilliant cynic—was lunching with a friend at Claridge's hotel in London one day.

A young couple entered, and Mr. Saltus' friend murmured with a smile: "See that couple? Well, Edgar, they're engaged. I heard him in the lounge this morning begging for just one."

"Engaged? Nonsense!" said Mr. Saltus, and he laughed cynically. "That's Lord Looeland and his American wife. They have been married over a year, man. It was a fever he was begging for."

JACK JOHNSON GAVE UP GUARANTEE CHECK TO JUDGE BOUTS HERE

Ten years ago Tuesday, Jack Johnson, then heavyweight champion boxer of the world, signed a contract with the Janesville Athletic club to referee a card of bouts at the rink on South River street. But the call of the "Junk" was too much for Big Jack and he forfeited his guarantee check a week later in order to accept a stage appointment.

"A player is a hold-out until the training season is over unless he signs before," Grabner said. The secretary declared that if there are any instances where Chicago players have refused to sign contracts they are isolated.

BRINGING UP FATHER

Ward, Janesville Mutual Star of 1877, Superman in History of Baseball

By FRANK SINGLARI.

In these days of shifting trade winds and domination of the draft in organized baseball there comes a story wafted from the pioneer days of the game. It concerns Janesville and the old Mutuals of 45 years ago. It revolves around one, John Montgomery Ward, one of the supermen of the diamond.

Today this man is a successful lawyer in New York city. The story starts in Philadelphia, jumps to Milwaukee and ends in a hilarious shout in Janesville.

A graduate of Penn state in 1877, Ward played baseball in Philadelphia. His success in the city of Brotherly Love spread so rapidly that Milwaukee got after him and called him to the Cream City.

Sidetracked here While he was on his way, a Philadelphia game from Dr. Thomas Judd of this city, giving a tip that Ward was going to Milwaukee, Janesville baseball official J. P. Bliss, captain of the team, to Milwaukee to sidetrack the player and wired him aboard the train at Alliance, O., not to sign with Milwaukee until he had seen Bliss.

Bliss handed Ward such a good line, that the star was turned from the Cream City and sent over the main line to the Bower City. He finished the season in the Mutuals at $25 a month and spent the winter of 1877-1878 as an employee of the Gazette Printing company making his home with R. L. Colvin, then owner of the Mutuals.

This man Ward was the fourth in the history of baseball to twirl a no-hit game. He was also the first to pitch a game in which no man reached first base.

Memories of his record on the diamond are revived in a letter from Captain Bliss, now a successful and well-to-do attorney of Cleveland, O., to Frank Smith, Janesville's present manager and organizer of the Mutuals.

In those days the Mutuals were one of the crack teams of the world. Mr. Smith has also received a letter from Ward, written in bed at his home in Babylon, L. I., while convalescing from a dangerous attack of pneumonia.

Ward was born in Bellefonte, Pa. It was in 1877 he embarked on a professional baseball career. He played with Williamsport, Pa., and the Resolutes of Renova, Pa., that year. In 1878, he played with the famous Providence Grays, who won the National League championship.

He remained with Providence until 1882, when he was sold to the New York Giants for $15,000. He was a pitcher, but when his arm failed, he stepped over to shortstop where he became one of the greatest infielders of the game.

"Ward was one of the busiest fellows I ever met," says Mr. Smith. "He and I used to go up to the diamond in the morning and take turns batting out flies. He didn't have to do that kind of work, but he would do it. When his arm went bad, he didn't drop out of the game like so many do, but he said he could cover short. When they needed a second baseman, he said he could do it. That was the kind of a man Ward was."

Ward's World's Title Because of his mental qualifications, he was made captain and in 1893 he was elevated to manager. He served in that capacity that year and the next. During his captaincy, the Giants twice led the National League and were world champions while under his management they finished fifth and second.

The star player of those days received slight remuneration and when the big league managers decided $2,000 was enough to pay any player, no matter how well he batted or pitched, Ward was one of the organizers of a revolt that resulted in the organization of the Brotherhood of Players' League. He jumped to the Giants to manage the Brooklyn team in this outlaw circuit.

When the players' league blew up the following winter and peace was restored, Ward was one of the best known players in the game.

Without any doubt, Ward was one of the best known players in the history of the national pastime. As a pitcher he had terrific speed. As an infielder he was famed for his wonderful throwing arm and ability to cover ground. He was a strong, fast, and powerful player.

In 1909 when death took Harry Pullman, Ward was suggested as president of the National league, but some could not forgive his revolt of 1890 and his election did not take place.

WHITE HAired, 60, BACK ON DIAMOND

Port Huron, Mich.—The thrill of a great, hard-fought, and spiced game in the sunlight as feet go into the air sliding into the plate and the musical creak of the turn-sille of the grand stand have lured another former big league manager back to organized baseball.

W. H. Watkins, white haired and on the wrong side of 60, after quitting the game with the collapse of the Federal league, will have "active" charge of the Port Huron-Sarnia baseball club of the Michigan-Ontario league this season. He will pick the players and supervise playing strategy, as well as direct the business.

Watkins sprang into prominence on the diamond when the Port Huron independent club which he managed and on which he played third won the world's championship in the early '80s. He was one of the 30 players in a team of the country. He attracted attention in Detroit in the old National league and was made manager, winning the world's championship on baseball to papers and magazines and wrote several books, some of them dealing with the inside of baseball.

In 1889, when Al G. Spaulding of Rockford, Ill., took over the team, he picked Ward to captain the team that accompanied the White Sox. Ward's team won a large majority of the games on that historic trip.

White Haired, 60, BACK ON DIAMOND

Port Huron, Mich.—The thrill of a great, hard-fought, and spiced game in the sunlight as feet go into the air sliding into the plate and the musical creak of the turn-sille of the grand stand have lured another former big league manager back to organized baseball.

W. H. Watkins, white haired and on the wrong side of 60, after quitting the game with the collapse of the Federal league, will have "active" charge of the Port Huron-Sarnia baseball club of the Michigan-Ontario league this season. He will pick the players and supervise playing strategy, as well as direct the business.

Watkins sprang into prominence on the diamond when the Port Huron independent club which he managed and on which he played third won the world's championship in the early '80s. He was one of the 30 players in a team of the country. He attracted attention in Detroit in the old National league and was made manager, winning the world's championship on baseball to papers and magazines and wrote several books, some of them dealing with the inside of baseball.

25-MILE LIMIT ON FIRE TRUCK SPEED

Other Restrictions Contained in Code of 57 Rules Just Adopted Here.

Janesville fire trucks are limited to a speed of about 25 miles an hour in the business district and 25 miles an hour in the residence district unless the fire can be seen, as in case of a new set of rules and regulations for the fire department adopted recently by the police and fire commission. Reckless driving is prohibited. In going to No. 1 street, both downtown companies are out on an alarm, the Spring Brook truck is limited to a speed of 20 miles.

The code of 57 rules will make more fire efficient in the department in the belief of chief C. J. Murphy who was instrumental in getting the schedule drawn up. The city has had for many years a set of rules and the police department but not for the fire department.

"The new code fills a long felt need," said Chief Murphy.

To Protect Equipment
Protection of hose is the object of three of the rules which call for changing, testing and drying of the hose on every truck once a month, not more than one car being charged with the hose in case of fire, any officer in charge of laying a line of hose across a street or railroad track will be required to see that someone is standing by to take care of the hose and to cause the arrest of any person disregarding the orders. Before taking up hose after a fire, it must be uncoupled, drained and then rolled up, great care being taken in handling pipes and couplings.

Drivers are required to take care of cars as soon as they arrive back from a fire. All tanks are to be filled, and all tanks are to be attended to. Cars must be kept clean and any car trouble must be reported immediately. Repairs are to be made so that chemical tanks are ready for use at all times. The code provides that drivers shall start the motors upon arrival at the station and let them run for 5 or 10 minutes.

Must Stay Near Station

One important rule is No. 15 which orders that firemen on duty shall not go beyond hearing distance of the station telephone except when absent on duty. Firemen on duty wishing to leave the station must first get permission from officer in charge.

All firemen are required to arise at 7:30 a. m. and all other necessary work about the house completed by 11 a. m. In exercising horses, drivers must not leave the station until the lower bell at central station; horses are to be let out to the harness for all box alarms.

Members of the department on regular duty are required to respond to all alarms of fire, and any man shirking his duty at a fire is subject to immediate discharge. The call-men must report to all box alarms, and must be on duty for three hours a day for meals.

Obedy Orders Promptly

Other rules provide that members of the department shall obey orders promptly, shall not make remarks about any man, woman or child near the fire station, and shall not waste or misuse any property of the department. They are prohibited from taking any intoxicating liquors to the fire station or drinking while on duty or while in uniform.

"All must keep their bills paid up," says rule 56.

Officers are required to question the men about the alarm boxes and streets semi-monthly and report those who do not learn.

In taking phone calls, firemen are advised to report the street and house number. All calls will be sent into West Side station and both West and East Side companies will respond unless notified that it is a chimney fire. In that case only one company will go, the rules say.

Following are the regulations on bells:

1. Taps means fire out.
2. Taps means more water.
3. Taps means more water.
4. Taps means more water.

Second alarm from same box means remaining companies will respond.

10 taps of bell means general alarm.

Duties, Powers, of Chief

The chief is given full command and control over all persons in service and all equipment and is authorized to order a $25 reward for the arrest and conviction of any person turning in a false alarm. Regular inspections of buildings within fire limits, semi-monthly inspections of those out of the fire limits and quarterly reports to the council are also required.

The chief hires all employees and appoints all subordinate officers subject to approval of police and fire commission and with like approval can remove or dismiss them. He may prescribe safety limits at a fire. The first captain to the fire will be in command until the chief of assistants arrives.

Every regular member is required to devote his full time to the business of the department. Members not appointed by the council may be dismissed by the chief while to dismiss any duly appointed member he must file charge with the commission.

The rules provide for the regulation of uniforms and specify that firemen in uniform must not attend theatrical or other public performances unless detailed for such.

The city electrician is placed under orders of fire department officers and his duties are prescribed, as first—taking care of the fire alarm system, and second—giving permits for wiring and using electric lights. He is required to arrange his inspections so as to give one-half of each day to the alarm system. Cleaning and testing of alarm boxes is called for three times a year.

U. S. MINING CAR OPEN TO PUBLIC

On Track Here This Week
While First Aid Work
Is Given.

The great amount of work now being done by the U. S. Bureau of Mines in connection with the Wisconsin Industrial commission to save human lives in mines, quarries and sand pits is being shown here this week.

Government car No. 10, one of the ten sent out by the United States to cover the whole country, is now located here while two men are giving instruction at the council chamber at the city hall in first aid work. The car has been placed on a spur track near the Northwestern depot where anybody interested in seeing the apparatus used in fighting mine fires, and the engine of the government car, is welcome. Those wishing to visit the car should do so between 1 and 5 p. m. Wednesday or Thursday.

Spent Sunday morning, for Ableman and other places in the state.

A. J. Martinson and M. B. Orfield are the two occupying the car, while a negro cook and a porter give them their meals and take care of the car.

The state law now requires that at each pit there shall be two men versed in first aid. It is for this reason that the industrial commission is giving instructions to men all over the state so that when more strikes occur, the men will be able to take care of the situation.

There will be men at each pit. The instructions here are being given from 9-12 and from 1-4 on Tuesday and Wednesday morning, thus giving in all Thursday morning. Much of the time is taken up with practical demonstrations of bandaging and other first aid necessities, while a number of short lectures are given.

Since the car and the demonstrations kept a large crowd near the car constantly.

Answer Calls for Help

Mining work is the original work of the crew, and of the other cars that are sent all over the United States. It does not matter whether it is in a mine, or a sand pit, or a quarry, the men and the car must leave immediately. Such a call came when this car was in Berlin, and the outfit was packed up and the car left for Minnesota. Luckily, the serious mine fire was out by the time the car arrived, and work in Wisconsin was resumed.

Twenty sets of mine rescuing apparatus and self-contained oxygen breathing apparatus, which are similar, but different in principle, from the army gas masks, are carried. A cylinder of compressed oxygen is carried, on each person with these apparatuses, which will last for two hours, with no other air being used. The nozzle is put into the mouth and nose, air-filled goggles over the eyes, and the person is ready for a two hour fight in the mines in deadly gas-carbon monoxide.

Canaries Are Used

Canaries are also carried on this car, for they are used in mine fires. A canary, according to the U. S. Bureau of Mines, is more sensitive to the deadly gas of carbon monoxide than man. They are taken down into the mines to detect its presence. In some cases they die, and in others they just make unconscious and can be brought back to life. While white mice could be used for this purpose, it would be harder to detect if they were affected, as they would be in the mine.

Every modern equipment has been fitted to this car used in traveling about the country, to make it home-like for those on it. There are accommodations for nine men to stay three night and day with the books, desks, phonographs and caskets on the floor and the comfortable. Even a telephone has been installed, as is customary, the car having its own instruments, and getting a lineman to connect with the city wire as soon as they arrive in a town.

Altogether, it proves interesting work and shows the advancement of the government in caring for the safety of the nation by educating these responsible positions and those who are in a position to help save human life.

YOUNG "PONZI" OF
CHICAGO IN TOILS

ated. They were, practically without exception, hard working people from "back of the yards," Lithuanians, who had invested their all with the "wizard" in hope of immense returns.

There were work hardened women with shawls over their heads and babies in their arms, able to talk but ill at ease, but with dread in their hearts that savings of a lifetime were being swept away. There were men in work clothes who gesticulated as they held converse in their native tongue.

"We heard this Bischoff is coming here and we want to see him. We want our money back," they told R. G. Gend, representative of the Central Trust company, receiver, in charge of the office as custodian.

"We're working hard to uncover every nickel of assets," says Stuyk-mans. "We find Bischoff apparently sunk vast sums in the Y oil and Gas company. The value of this stock is a share, but its present market value is only 22 cents. There are many other oil concerns and other companies that Bischoff bought stock in with his clients' money. It is impossible to say yet just what value these investments have. It may take weeks to uncover all his deals."

Others trying to get at the bottom of the mess of get rich, quick schemes employed by the "whirling financier," who acted hand out—upon occasion—huge profits to his "investors," are F. E. Hummel and Attorney Edward T. Hiebman of the bankruptcy division of the Central Trust company.

Remains in Seclusion.

Bischoff is being held at a loop hotel on orders of United States Marshal Robert Lusk. He insistently refuses to see callers.

"It will all be straightened out sooner or later," he declares. "Right now it suits me fine to be a 'prison-

Suggestions for Constructing Bird Houses

Wood is the best building material for Bird House, therefore only Bird Houses made of wood may be entered in the competition. Entrance holes should be counterbored or beveled from the outside to exclude rain. Holes should be painted in a neutral shade of green or gray if the house is made of boards. The rustic Bird Houses made of a log with the bark on, or made of boards covered with bark, will be accepted. All houses on, or made of boards, should be covered with bark. A perch at the entrance is not necessary, and where there are many English sparrows it is better not to have any perch. Perches for other birds should be placed under the roof, but there should never be any ventilation holes lower than the entrance. All joints should be made tight, so drafts of air are dangerous. In case that rain may be driven in through the roof, a small drainage hole may be placed in the center of the floor. Place your house where cats cannot disturb it and at proper distance from house.

Lad Admits He Hasn't Sold Patent as Yet

To become a millionaire inventor in the next decade through sale of a patent of a gasoline gauge which shall become a standard part of the motor car, is the dream of James Carroll, 18 year old, of Happy Hollow, youth but may not be realized, for some time.

Carroll on Tuesday admitted to the same reporters for the Gazette to the story of millions that he had but secured the patent and has not yet sold it to the Ford Motor company.

Sick since nine years old, Carroll has been confined to his home, which is a small, one-story house, in the town of Happy Hollow, near the town of Janesville.

Unable to do much work on different instruments which he planned to patent, more than to become a millionaire, he has become an obsession with him and he had been told by many men that Henry Ford might buy it. It became almost a reality with him, his mother explained.

The device which has been patented by Carroll and which he hopes to sell to Ford or some other auto concern, is a gasoline gauge which is a small, round, flat, disc, with a float in the center, and a wire attached to the float, which is connected to the gas tank. The float is attached to the wire at the tank end, and the number of gallons of gasoline in the tank is indicated on a dial on the dash board.

Asked to show his papers—the youth said they were in Washington where they had been sent by John McLaughlin, young Rockford attorney, and that they had been in the patent office. A desire to keep the matter quiet until the transaction of selling it is completed was expressed by the boy.

In the meantime while attempts are made to sell the patent, James Carroll works quietly and in secret on other things which he plans to patent, including a phonograph silencer and a cylinder oil gauge.

"And by way of changing the subject, Mrs. Aquila voluntarily announced her plans for the rest of the day."

"I'm going to see a tomb in Rock Creek Park—somebody Adams, let me see, no not Jane Adams, of course not, no it couldn't be that."

"The St. Gaudens statue," suggested a reporter.

"Yes, yes, that's just it, you're very clever."

Again an anxious reporter trying to find out what it was that she had said, interrupted her, saying that it was of importance to Mrs. Aquila on international politics inquired if the St. Gaudens statue was mentioned.

"Ah," answered Mrs. Aquila as she put her finger to her lips with an air of mystery—"and I can't talk about that."

COOKING SCHOOL PROVES POPULAR

150 Women Attend Opening Day at Leath's--Contest Is Planned.

If the old adage of winning and retaining a man through his stomach holds true, then the brides, almost brides, and merely wives of Janesville better themselves to the cooking school which began Tuesday afternoon at Leath's with 150 attendees.

Of the 150, few were brides, most of the pupils being veterans in the culinary art which seems to indicate that the women of Janesville are not as yet ready to enter the kitchen for civil affairs.

Miss Elsie Hinkley, a graduate of the Lewis Institute, home economics course, gave proof of the pudding when at the conclusion of the lesson three different varieties of cake were almost magically produced from the oven, done to the queen's taste.

That knowledge of food and accurate standard of measurements is the key to success in cooking, was brought out by Miss Hinkley's lecture which preceded the demonstration. The lesson was entirely in German which encouraged many questions from those of the old school. Universal problems such as how to obtain fine texture in cakes; accurate method of setting the boiled frosting; the proper consistency; and temperature of the oven; were thrashed out.

In addition to three recipes for cakes and two jellies, suggestions were also given for variations of cake and attractive ways of trimming the cakes to suit the occasion.

Hints on Cake Baking.

Miss Hinkley in the course of her demonstration gave many helpful hints on cake baking. A few of them: If only one egg is used in the cake it is better not to separate the yolk from the white, since there are 16 tablespoons in a cup it is easier to measure less than half a cup with tablespoons; in baking sponge cakes bake in an oven with low temperature and do not oil pan; liquid fat used in place of butter saves time in creaming butter and sugar.

Janetville cooks will be given an opportunity of demonstrating their ability Friday in the contest which will be given for the best cakes made with Mazola oil and frosted with an icing containing Karo syrup. Three prizes will also be awarded for the best pastry also to be made with Mazola. All are eligible to enter, no limit being placed upon the number of entries although only one prize will be awarded to a person. Any recipe may be used and three capable judges will select the winners. Entries must be in by noon Friday.

List of Prizes.

The list of prizes follows: first prize, best cake, Westinghouse turn over electric toaster, offered by the Wisconsin Electric Sales Co.; second prize, Pyrex etched casserole offered by Sheldon Hardware company; third prize, one quart can of Mazola oil.

Pastry—first prize, Russell electric toaster, Wisconsin Electric Sales Co.; second prize, aluminum roaster, offered by A. Leath and Co.; third prize, quart of Mazola oil.

Electrical apparatus and kitchen cabinets were exhibited and demonstrated following the cooking lesson, Tuesday. Preceding the lesson Claude Nyvick conducted a phonograph concert playing the latest Brunswick records.

"The Use and Abuse of Fat" was the subject for the lecture, Wednesday. Miss Hinkley also gave a lesson in doughnut making. The course will continue through Friday afternoon, Thursday to be devoted to luncheon dishes, quick breads, pastry, and Friday to salads and salad dressings.

CO-EDS WILL GET SPANKED IF THEY BUST THESE RULES

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Chicago—Max Wilkower, justice of the peace and sage of Evanston, who decrees what Northwestern University boys and coeds may do—and what will happen to them if they do—on Monday handed down a new decree whose 10 high crimes and misdemeanors are punishable with spanking.

The rules designed to apply to all classes of university students, high school pupils and just kids, are to be enforced, in the case of masculine offenders, by Policeman Carl Egan and in the case of girls by Policewoman Georgiana Jewell.

The minimum spank sentence is five and the maximum, 25. Here are the ten rules:

1. Don't wear "out" (i. e., unbuttoned) buttons.

2. Don't wear in public unless 21 or over.

3. Don't smoke cigarettes unless 21 or over.

4. Don't appear in an automobile where the public can see.

5. Don't get dormitory decorations by stealing "souvenirs."

6. Don't take more than one car's automobile for a joy ride.

7. Don't "ride" (i. e., ride on running board, radiator or tire carrier) on automobiles.

8. Don't hook sleds on hub sleds or automobiles.

9. Don't roller skate in the downtown district.

10. Don't be a rowdy in an ice cream parlor.

Parents who desire, will be permitted to do their own spanking under Justice Wilkower's supervision.

Critics have always disagreed as to the character of the music. Some claim it is secular music set to sacred words while others hold the music is most sacred. At any rate the music is beautiful and music lovers in Janesville and in neighboring towns are glad to know that the Janesville community chorus is planning to present it.

State Fight Against "T. B." Showing Gain

Madison—The drop in the number of deaths from tuberculosis in 1921 recently announced as the lowest mortality on record in Wisconsin, is also notable, the state board of health said today, as marking the first time since accurate records have been available that this mortality has been less than 2000 in a year.

The rate for each 100,000 population is 73.6, the lowest figures ever attained in the state. In 1920 the rate was 84.6, the decrease being fully 10 points below the previous year's record. This improved showing is said to be more pronounced when it is recalled that the usual yearly drop represents only one or two points.

The board believes Wisconsin will be among the states having the lowest mortality rates. During 1921, the case reporting of tuberculosis was improved considerably, the number of reported cases being exceeded only once in previous years.

"A decreased death rate, with increased registration, is one of the healthiest possible signs connected with public health administration," the board said.

Stringer Leads Rehearsals for "Stabat Mater"

Rehearsal for the presentation by the community chorus of Rossini's "Stabat Mater" here this spring will be held at 3 p. m. Sunday in the Y. M. C. A.

So successful was the recent community singing effort, Milton and Janesville will cooperate for the presentation of "Stabat Mater." Those interested in the community chorus work are urged to attend Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock, the Y. M. C. A.

Prof. L. H. Stringer, Milton, will take charge of the chorus work.

All distinguished musical settings of the "Stabat Mater" none is more famous than that of Gioacchino Rossini, and it has a romantic history.

Rossini was a writer of operas. His "William Tell" is perhaps the most widely known. At the age of 37 he suddenly severed his connection with the stage and the rest of his life was without musical activity save for the composition of the "Stabat Mater" which came in 1832.

This wonderful oratorio was composed for and dedicated to the abbess of the convent of the Holy Sepulchre in Rome, and the composer received as compensation a snuff box of some value. Many years later it was sold for publication and given to the public and the master-piece at once recognized it as a masterpiece.

Critics have always disagreed as to the character of the music. Some claim it is secular music set to sacred words while others hold the music is most sacred. At any rate the music is beautiful and music lovers in Janesville and in neighboring towns are glad to know that the Janesville community chorus is planning to present it.

LUMBER PRICES AT BOTTOM, ASSERTION

No Need for Further Delay in Building Convention Is Advised.

Milwaukee—The prices of lumber have been stabilized to a normal basis, Adolph Pfund, secretary of the National Retail Lumber Dealers' association, told delegates to the 32nd annual convention of the Wisconsin Retail Lumbermen's association in session here Wednesday.

Mr. Pfund said that nothing would be gained by waiting for lower prices in the matter of building. He urged lumber dealers to do everything in their power to make America a nation of home owners.

Confidence is the most important element in business success, said George W. Haffner, Chicago.

"The business man must be built by facts," he added. "For the old days of 'hunch' and 'guess' are over."

FAIR TO CONDUCT FUTURITY SHOW

Nowlan Announces Plans for $400 Contest for Pigs, First of Its Kind Here.

Secretary Harry C. Nowlan is putting forth every effort to secure 20 herds for the district futurity show to be conducted at one of the many features in the livestock department of Janesville's 1922 fair, August 8-11. The show is being promoted jointly by the Janesville Park association and the National Duroc-Jersey Record association, Peoria, Ill., and involves $400 in premiums.

"This district futurity show, will be the largest contest of its kind we have ever endeavored to promote at the Janesville fair," said Mr. Nowlan. "I am hoping for at least 20 herd nominations so we can set in the $400 classification."

Hard nominations close April 1, 1922, leaving just about six weeks for breeders to enter, the fee being $5 per herd. A second or final payment of $1 per pig will fall due and must be paid 30 days before the opening of the show for each pig from litters kept good for the show that it is desired to exhibit. All payments in the future must be made direct to the National association at Peoria.

If less than 20 herds are nominated, no senior pig futurity will be promoted but the junior pig futurity will stand and awards will be made if 10 or more herds are nominated.

If there are 20 nominations, the Janesville show will be in the $400 classification—$200 for fall pigs and $200 for spring pigs. Fall pigs must be farrowed on or after Sept. 1, 1921, and before March 1, 1922, while spring pigs must be farrowed on or after March 1, 1922.

In each division, premiums will be as follows: Four—first, $10; second, $10; third, $10; fourth, $5; fifth, $5; sixth, $5. Sows—same prizes as for boars. Litter of four—first, $25; second, $15; third, $10; fourth, $10; fifth, $10; sixth, $5.

Breeders wishing futurity circulars and blanks should write to Harry C. Nowlan, secretary, Janesville Park association, Janesville.

City Manager Petition Law Has Not Been Repealed

A dispatch to the Milwaukee Journal Sunday from Neillsville, Wis., says the city attorney or that town had ruled that as the legislature repealed that part of the statutes providing for petition under the city management law no election could be held. This question was raised in October last in reference to Kenosha when the revisor of statutes, Hon. C. A. Crownhart, gave an opinion. He said in a letter to an inquirer in Janesville:

"While these sections are repealed (1921-22 to 1925-26) under the special charter law, they still stand as a part of the City Manager plan. In Sika vs. C. & N. W. Ry. Co., 21, Wis. 2d, 190, the supreme court held that 'A statute which refers to and adopts the provisions of another statute, is not repealed by the subsequent repeal of the statute adopted.'"

8,500,000 RUBLES TO BUY $10 WORTH OF AMERICAN FOOD

How would you like to out shopping for your week's groceries, and pay out $3,000,000 rubles for $10.00 worth of nourishing American food? It would probably require a train of porters loaded with gunny sacks full of rubles, to take the money to the market, and one man to carry the food home. Yet that is what would have to be done by the starving Russians if they had the money in the first place, or in the second place, could get the food.

This is the amount of money it is estimated, which would be required, to purchase at Simbirsk, Russia, an amount of food equivalent to that contained in a $10.00 food package sent through the Hoover Food Remittance system, to needy people in the famine districts of Russia.
